Caroline Bunce

Caroline is the Education and Outreach Officer for the M&S Company Archive in Leeds, where she established the Archive's Schools and Events programmes in 2012. Working with this fascinating business archive collection, these programmes have engaged thousands of learners with the past and present of Marks & Spencer through formal and informal workshops, events and projects.

With over 15 years' experience in the heritage education sector, Caroline has created, delivered and evaluated programmes for audiences in a wide range of settings – from the corporate sector to local authority museums and archives, to national organisations.

With a focus on providing high quality, collection-based opportunities for participation, Caroline's experience includes creating curriculum-linked primary and secondary school programmes from scratch, developing programmes for home-educating families, project management of audience development initiatives, developing organisational policy, managing public events and creating digital learning resources.
