

SANDFORD AWARD

Dr Michael Maddison

Michael is an independent educational consultant with particular expertise in history and heritage education. He served as National Lead for history at Ofsted (2008 - 2015) and was the author of 'History for All', Ofsted's highly regarded national report on history in schools. Before this, Michael taught history for over 25 years. As an inspector of schools and now as a consultant, Michael has extensive links with heritage education. He was, for example, the author of 'Planning Outstanding Local History and Heritage Projects', published by Historic England in May 2016 and updated in 2019. Michael is associate vice president and honorary fellow of the Historical Association (HA), a former Deputy President of the HA, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society (RHS), and a member of the RHS Education Policy Committee. Michael is also a Director of the Heritage Education Trust as well as being a judge for the Sandford Award for Heritage Education.