

Elaine Topham

Elaine is enjoying retirement having spent the first part of her working career teaching across the primary age range schools and then as a Learning Officer in local authority museums. Her museum work (spanning 23 years) involved resourcing learning programmes across sites with the aim of providing memorable, accessible and quality learning experiences for all students. She is particularly interested in first person interpretation in museums having developed that approach herself within museum venues.

Having been on the receiving end of the Sandford Assessment process, she hopes to encourage and support the learning process in the heritage environment.