

SANDFORD AWARD

Jemma Conway

Jemma is currently the Transformation Manager at Barnsley Libraries and a freelance consultant working with organisations funded by Arts Council England and the National Lottery Heritage Fund. She has worked in heritage and museums since 2005, formerly as the Learning Manager for Barnsley Museums, managing a team of learning professionals and running the award winning learning service as a trading arm of the museums service's five sites. Jemma achieved the Sandford Award for Experience Barnsley Museum, Cannon Hall Museum and the Cooper Gallery during this time.

Jemma has a BA in Art History, an MA in Museum Studies and holds an AMA. Jemma has been the Yorkshire Representative for the Museums Association and is a member of GEM. She is passionate about children and young people accessing good quality creative education, with hands-on experiences in exciting settings. Jemma joined the Heritage Education Trust as a Sandford Award assessor in 2022.
